Summary

I am a full-stack engineer with more than six years of experience who is passionate about creating software solutions with excellent user experiences. believe in my ability to inspire oneself and solve problems.
worked with a variety of businesses in the past and significantly influenced every step of development. I have been concentrating on developing full-stack applications using cutting-edge web/mobile technologies, and I am not afraid to work on the most difficult aspect of the project to add something special.
I may offer advice on the project's commercial side and always approaches the application from the perspective of the user.

In my personal life, I enjoy spending time with friends and family, as well as almost any outdoor activity
